White Mob Rushes Negro School Buses In South

By United Press International

An angry white mob turned over two school buses loaded with Negro children at a newly desegregated school at Lamar, S.C., today and attacked law enforcement officers with ax handles, chains and bricks.

A force of South Carolina Highway Patrolmen battled the whites with nightsticks before dispersing them with tear gas. Authorities said the mob of about 150 white men and women tried to attack Negro children getting off the buses, but police managed to keep the students from being beaten.

The violence was the worst reported in the South since the region began complying in January with federal court orders for total desegregation. Darlington County, which includes Lamar, was the second South Carolina county placed under such an order.

An aide to Gov. Robert E. McNair said the governor was considering calling out the National Guard to protect the school, Lamar High. The school, meanwhile, was ordered closed and McNair said it would stay closed until "action is taken to restore order and calm in the area."

The governor's office said the mob attacked law enforcement officers with "chains, spikes, bricks, ax handles and rocks." The governor's office said there was a report that a shot was fired into the air by one member of the mob, but no one was hit.

"Several injuries were inflicted upon the officers, students and those participating in the confrontation," McNair's office said. It added that the officers reportedly "had to draw weapons to defend themselves, but no shots were fired."

Four Spend Night Under Motorboat

Four young Magic Valley residents who spent a cold, miserable night huddled beneath a boat at Salmon Dam are reported in good condition following their accidentally prolonged outing.

Sheriff Paul Corder said the two young couples left about noon Sunday to go fishing at Gray's Landing on Salmon Reservoir. When they hadn't returned by late Sunday night Rod Berry, Filer, went to search for his son, Rodney Berry, 18 and his companions, Larry Berry, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Berry, Twin Falls; Jill Brunzell, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Brown, Wendell, and Connie Lutz, 17, daughter of Mrs. Wanda Lutz, Filer.

Mr. Berry located only the pickup truck which the couples were operating and the boat trailer. Sheriff's officers were notified of the disappearance about 3 a.m. Monday and Sheriff Corder and two deputies put a boat into the water shortly after that. There also were two boat loads of volunteers searching for the missing fishermen, and at about 9 a.m. they were located about three miles south of the dam on the west side of the reservoir.

Manning the boat which located the stranded anglers were Lewis Porter and his two sons, Kimberly.

Sheriff Corder said the boat which the young people were in developed motor trouble Sunday evening. They were able to work the boat into Antelope Slough. They spent the night there.

The sheriff said they built a small fire and had killed a rabbit they were just getting ready to roast when they were rescued. The sheriff said the young couples were dressed warmly but were "pretty cold and hungry."

Besides searching the reservoir and shore by boat, Sheriff Corder said Rod Berry rented a plane Monday morning and was flying over the area when the youths were found.

Boat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The five-man crew of the treasure-hunting boat, Locelyn C apparently has been released by Cuban authorities, but there was no word early today whether the boat had left Cuba.

A State Department official in Miami said Monday the five men had been set free after an interrogation. The Coast Guard in Washington said at that time it is presumed the converted fishing boat was still in port or off the Cuban shore.

Trustees To Consider Bus Problem Here

Trustees of Twin Falls School District No. 411 promised Monday night to consider a busing problem in the South Park area, where students have to cross a railroad track to board and leave school buses twice a day.

Jesse Berain, 356 Gardner Ave., acting as spokesman for the South Park parents, emphasized the problem faced by the students in crossing two heavily traveled streets and the tracks to get to the bus stop.

The majority of the students live on Oak and Victory Avenues, and must cross Washington Street South to meet the bus at Diamond Ave., Mr. Berain said.

The trustees pointed out that there are two buses to the area each morning, at about 7:20 a.m. and again at about 8:20 a.m., and that the students would have connections to most schools with the 8:20 bus. The only exception would be one or two students attending the special education classes at Robert Stuart Junior High School, Dr. Ernest H. Ragland, superintendent of schools said.

Mr. Berain said the parents request a graveled turnaround area south of the tracks so the bus can enter the residential area, pick up the students, and turn around to return to town.

Dick Kirkman of Kirkman Bros., who operate the school buses in Twin Falls, attended the trustee session as a representative of his firm, and said that there would be a hazard to buses in crossing the tracks on Washington Street, due to the angle at which the street crosses the tracks.

Mr. Kirkman said the drivers would have difficulty in seeing that the tracks were clear.

Mr. Berain said that some school children have to traverse a railroad bridge to get to the bus stop, but the trustees indicated that the route the children use before arriving at the bus stop is not a school matter.

The trustees promised to give the problem full consideration. They also discussed a problem regarding lack of sidewalks in some streets of the South Park area. Dr. Ragland pointed out that "many of the best areas of Twin Falls don't have sidewalks even today." Many North End residential districts still do not have sidewalks, in addition to the South Park area, he said.

Nixon Offers Program To Aid Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today proposed a five-point program aimed at leading to "genuine reform" of elementary and secondary education in America.

Nixon outlined his program in a lengthy message to Congress.

"When educators, school boards and government officials alike admit that we have a great deal to learn about the way we teach, we will begin to climb up the staircase toward genuine reform," Nixon said.

His basic points were:

—Creation of an early learning program, established jointly by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) and the Office of Economic Opportunity, to set up a network of experimental centers "to discover what works best in early childhood education."

The program will be tied into the large day care plan included by the administration as part of the Family Assistance Act.

—Legislation to renew for three years the federal charter for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

—Creation of a National Institute of Education — a new agency within HEW — which gradually would take over existing research programs in the Office of Education.

Council Inks Agreements For Airlines

The Twin Falls City Council, meeting in regular session at City Hall Monday night, approved airport agreements with Air West and Trans Magic Airlines.

Although Air West is about $5,000 to $5,500 behind in payments of landing and takeoff fees at the airport, City Councilman John Christofferson said he understood the airline would make full payment to the city and county by "June or July."

The agreements with both airlines now have to be approved by the county commissioners, it was reported at the meeting.

Running for a period of five years starting last Feb. 28, the agreements call for minimum fees from each airline of $4,800 a year to be paid to the city and county.

Editorial Law Passed By Senate

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate by a 20-11 margin passed and sent to the House a bill to require that all editorials written in Idaho published newspapers be either signed by name or initial.

Floor sponsor Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, said such legislation would "upgrade the editorial reputation."

He told the Senate the bill would help eliminate "slanted" editorials and "the good writer would be rewarded and the bad writers forced from the profession."

Peavey said the people had the right to know who is writing the editorials, and added that those who write letters to the editors are always required to sign them and "there should be no difference with the editorial writer."

Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, debated against the proposal along with Sen. Fred Bagley, R-Boise.

Mr. Klein said, "an editorial is a reflection of the staff of a newspaper. This bill would destroy the real meaning of an editorial."

Bagley said, "we already know who is running the newspaper."

Sen. Wayne Kidwell, R-Boise, said, "this is not the type of legislation a state legislature should enact."

Senate President Pro Tem James Ellsworth, R-Leads, supported Peavey and argued that an editorial page of a newspaper is similar to a restaurant.

Sen. Walt Yarbrough, R-Grandview, told the upper chamber, "if a man is a good editorial writer he shouldn't be ashamed to sign his name. The man who writes it should accept the responsibility for it."

Vote

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Final results showed today Col. Carlos Arana Osorio won a substantial plurality in Sunday's presidential election but not the majority required to be declared president-elect.

The results threw the election into Congress. Guatemala law stipulates that if no presidential candidate obtains an absolute majority of votes cast, the unicameral congress must choose one of the two leading candidates to be president-elect.

The Jaycees, presently holding the lease on the hall, started remodeling work last weekend and signs of this remodeling were still seen Monday in the hall but the blood drawing went off as scheduled. The hall was donated by the Jaycees for the day.

The quota for the Twin Falls drive was 150 pints.

Six gallon donors were Francis Egbert and Charles Mattice; five gallon donor was Burton Webb Sr.; three gallon donors were Robert Mingo, Lowell Kuykendall, Mrs. Bonnie Wheeler, Everett Andrews, William Madland and Paul Ostyn, and one gallon donors were Glenn Nelson, John Theibert, Roger Lewis, Clarence Sweet, Larry Sablin and Roy Slotten.

Volunteer workers were Mrs. Max Crothers, Mrs. Leslie Jones, Mrs. A. E. Harper, Mrs. Leo Campeau, Mrs. Dale Kunzel, Mrs. Elsom Basom, Mrs. Craig Rousseau, Mrs. Pete Thornton, Helen Fleenor, Mrs. Howard Mills, Mrs. Pat Stradley, Sandi Milk, Emma Bothwell, Katie Fleenor, Mrs. C. M. Lanting, Mrs. Richard Clark, Mrs. Romi Klopfier, Mrs. Robert Fender and Mrs. Glenn Nelson.

The physician in attendance was Dr. W. H. Woodson, orange juice and milk was furnished by the Jay-C-Ettes, coffee, cheese and crackers were furnished by the Haus-Eraus, the Hollister Grange furnished cookies, and Gen State Paper Supply furnished cream and sugar.

Blood Quota Exceeded Here

Cold weather, the flu bug and present modifications in the American Legion Hall failed to prevent donors from giving blood Monday and for the ninth time in a row the quota was exceeded.

A total of 162 pints were donated and the chairman of the drive, David Nelson, said, "This drawing was impressive because of the showing by young people, teenagers who donated and worked."

Leader Of Scouting Sets Visit

Alden Barber, the chief Scout executive in the United States, will speak in Twin Falls March 20 at the annual Snake River Area Boy Scout Council banquet.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. at the Elks lodge and tickets may be purchased from the Boy Scout Service Center in downtown Twin Falls.

According to Darl Glead, Scout executive in the council, the banquet is being held to honor all adults who have taken part in Scouting. Four men will receive the Silver Beaver Award in recognition of their service to youth in the area.

Mr. Barber, an Eagle Scout as a youth, entered professional scouting in 1941. He served as a field Scout executive and worked in California and Illinois for many years. In 1961 he was named Scout executive of the Chicago area.

He was named the chief Scout executive in 1967.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON is in Brooke General Hospital in San Antonio, Texas, for tests and treatment after suffering a series of chest pains. His doctor said today that the 61-year-old former President had shown a "minor change" but that there is no evidence of recent heart attacks. (UPI telephoto)

FIRE INJURES 30

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — A streetcar collided with a truck carrying 17 tons of butane gas and both vehicles caught fire Monday, injuring 30 persons, police said. Thirteen fire companies fought the fire for 12 hours before bringing it under control.

Chest Pains Put Johnson In San Antonio Hospital

By H. MICHAEL RABUN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson entered Brooke General Hospital Monday suffering chest pains. "There is no evidence of any recent heart attacks," Johnson's heart specialist said.

"President Johnson is resting generally comfortably but there was another mild episode of chest pains at 5 p.m.," Tom Johnson, the former President's executive assistant, said Monday at the last medical briefing. The next briefing was scheduled for 11 a.m. (CST) today.

Johnson suffered a serious heart attack 15 years ago. It sidelined him six months.

Johnson first suffered the pains Feb. 20 while attending a board meeting at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. Doctors there told him to contact his heart specialist, Dr. J. Willis Hurst, of Atlanta.

"On Friday evening, Feb. 27, President Johnson again experienced pain in the chest and called Dr. Hurst," according to a statement released Monday by Johnson's office. "Dr. Hurst arrived at the LBJ Ranch Saturday morning. After this examination by Dr. Hurst on Saturday and Sunday, it was recommended that he be hospitalized for further study Monday afternoon."

Hurst conducted tests on Johnson over the weekend and reported a "minor change" in Johnson's electrocardiograph, but added "there is no evidence of any recent heart attacks."

Tom Johnson said the former president would be allowed "only limited activity" in the hospital. He could sit up and move from his bed to a chair.

Johnson received a call from President Nixon at 6:35 p.m. Nixon said he remembered visiting Johnson after his 1955 attack. Nixon "of course wished him the very best in this recent episode," Johnson's executive assistant said.

Secretary of State William Rogers also called, as did Johnson's daughters, Mrs. Charles Robb in Virginia and Mrs. Pat Nugent in Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Nugent visited LBJ in the hospital and returned to Austin.

Lady Bird Johnson spent the night with her husband at the hospital.

Dr. Col. Robert L. North, an Army heart specialist, said Johnson has a type of hardening of the arteries that was cutting the flow of blood to a portion of the heart.

Decision Of Illinois Trustees To Bar Kunstler Address Touches Off Violence

CHICAGO (UPI) — A decision by the University of Illinois Board of Trustees not to let school's trustees vote, 6-3, Monday to "defer" Kunstler's use of university facilities because of "a clear and present danger" of student disorders, after the trustees voted, more violence broke out Monday night. Police estimated "a couple of thousand" students participated in violence in which windows of about a dozen university buildings and several stores were smashed. At least 14 persons were arrested and several injured, three of them campus policemen.

Ten judges Monday told the U.S. Appeals Court a judge handling a difficult case must have "adequate power summarily to punish acts of direct contempt" because it is "essential to the fulfillment of our oath of office and to the administration of justice in United States District Court."

The judges asked to be heard as friends of the court in the appeal of 10 persons, the "seven," their attorneys and Black Panther Bobby G. Seal, who was sentenced for contempt after being severed from the case cited for contemptuous behavior during the trial by U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman.

The "Chicago Seven" announced Monday they were denouncing their "conspiracy" trial from Chicago to New York. The Chicago office was opened in September, 1969, weeks before the five-month trial began. A spokesman said the seven wanted to be heard in a trial of "members" of the Black Panther Party with consulting to our building in New York.

the airport jointly and it is known as the Twin Falls City-County Airport, Joslin Field.

When the runway is extended this spring (work was started last fall and called off because of cold weather) the annual minimum fee for each airline will be $6,800.

The fee allows each airline to use the field for landings, takeoffs and loading and unloading of passengers and cargo.

In other business, the council authorized Police Chief Barnett to represent the city in a small claims suit involving a pistol.

It was reported a pistol was confiscated from a person—his name was later found the person is a former felon. It is against federal law for former felons to have firearms.

Chief Barnett said attorneys are not allowed to represent either the plaintiff or defense in small claims actions, and he asked to be appointed the city's representative in the suit.

The suit asks $50 and $4.05 costs.

Chief Barnett said the pistol has been turned over to federal officials.

The Council passed an ordinance allowing gas lines to be one inch in diameter instead of one and one quarter inches.

The Council agreed to keep the Blue Lakes Veterinary Clinic contract as the city's poundmaster.

Mrs. Osterhout

BURLEY — Mrs. Katie Winn Osterhout, 75, Burley, died Sunday at Cassia Memorial Hospital, of a long illness.

She was born June 13, 1894, at American Fork, Utah. On Nov. 25, 1905, she married Leon Carl Osterhout at Declo and their marriage was later solemnized in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

In 1908 she moved to Burley from American Fork and she has since lived here. She was an active member of the LDS Church and served in various departments.

Survivors include her husband, Burley; nine sons, Carl Osterhout, Milton Osterhout, Seymour Osterhout, Kenneth Osterhout, Winn Osterhout, Owen Osterhout, DeLo Osterhout and Wilton Osterhout, all Declo, and Ray Osterhout, View; 50 grand children and 26 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Declo LDS Ward Chapel with Bishop Joe Preston officiating. Burial will be at the Declo Cemetery. Friends may call at the McCulloch Funeral Home today and Wednesday morning and at the Declo church an hour prior to services.

Mrs. Jolley

BURLEY — Mrs. Mary Ann Huber Jolley, 90, Burley, died of a lingering illness Monday at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

She was born Jan. 28, 1880, at Rockville, Utah. On Feb. 19, 1904, she was married to Kenneth Wilson Jolley at Lovel, Wyo. Their marriage was solemnized in 1927 at the Logan LDS Temple.

The couple moved from Lovel to Burley in 1908. Mrs. Jolley had lived in Burley since then. Mr. Jolley died Jan. 15, 1936.

Mrs. Jolley was a member of the LDS Church, active in the Relief Society and served as a relief society visiting teacher. She was a Sunday school teacher at the Star Ferry Ward.

Surviving are six sons, Ferrell Jolley and Hal Jolley, both Burley; Blayne Jolley, Mira Loma, Calif.; Wayne Jolley, Heyburn, Calif.; Jolley, Pleasant Hill, Calif.; and Norman Jolley, Po-cattello; five daughters, Mrs. Myrtle Higley, Burley; Mrs. Cora Wardle, Boise; Mrs. Eileen Milligan, Sacramento, Calif.; Mrs. Edna Huse, Oakland, Calif.; and Mrs. Zina Short, Po-cattello; two sisters, Mrs. Lula Armstrong, Hurricane, Utah, and Mrs. Rhoda Patton, Downey, Calif.; and 38 grandchildren and 55 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Burley Second Lyman Mar-chapel by Bishop Lyman Mar-chapel. Final rites will be at Pleasant View Cemetery.

Friends may call at the McCulloch Funeral Home Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday prior to time of services.

Jerome Sets

Seminar On

Pesticides

JEROME — A Magic Valley Pesticide Seminar will be held in Jerome at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Legion Hall, in the 600 block of North Lincoln.

The program will cover the use of pesticides in county weed control, state highway maintenance, canal company operations, Bureau of Reclamation Lands, U.S. Forest Service operations, Taylor grazing lands and on Indian lands.

The Agricultural Coordinating Committee for Magic Valley will discuss its functions. There will be a report from the Fish and Game Department and a report on the monitoring of pesticides in Idaho.

ANTI-WAR BILL

Yugoslavs Not Entirely Happy With Combined Socialist-Capitalist Society

By A. H. HERMANN
London Financial Times-UPI

LONDON—Yugoslavia's "self-managing society," in which both socialist and capitalist principles combine, is attracting criticism from all sides. Yugoslav "Stalinists" complain about a lack of discipline and demand a return to a bureaucratically controlled economy on the Soviet model. This may not be surprising but criticism also comes from the more liberal elements. The government stabilization program provoked unprecedented criticism all around. The government was accused of wishful thinking, hiding the truth and of offering optimism but not solutions, to current problems. For the critics there are certainly impressive arguments. The standard of living of Yugoslavia's urban population has increased sharply since World War II but life in the rural areas (particularly on the numerous islands) is still not much changed from 100 years ago. The government admits that 1971 will have to bring "rehabilitation of the reform" it promises to reduce the foreign trade deficit and to contain the rise in prices without retreating from the liberal economic reform initiated in 1963 and launched in 1965 by a drastic devaluation of the dinar and the imposition of an equally drastic credit squeeze. But Yugoslavia's liberals fear that a recently passed amendment to the constitution could be used to curtail the powers of workers' management committees, the basis of the Yugoslav reform and source of inflationary tendencies. Many current Yugoslav problems can, according to the critics, be traced back to the fact that the government—which still controls 25 per cent of national income and fixes 50 per cent of all prices—gives its managers and workers management committees, freedom to manage without obliging them to foot the bill. One theoretical assumption of the Yugoslav economic reform was that once the frontiers are open to foreign, and particularly Western, competition, management and workers-management committees can be given the freedom to fix prices and wages. They have now this freedom but the competition of foreign goods is far from effective. The result is that it is possible to meet wage claims simply by increasing prices and this is often done. The 19 per cent increase in incomes in 1969 compared with only an 12½ per cent increase in industrial production and a 10 per cent increase in the cost of living is a result of this situation.

Tourism Grows

HONG KONG (UPI) — Hong Kong will need 21,500 or more rooms by the end of the 1970s because of the growth of its tourist industry, according to Harry F. Stangely, executive director of the Hong Kong Tourist Association.

"In 1957 Hong Kong had only about 800 rooms that were suitable for tourists and visitors," Stanley said in a speech. "In 1969, we had 7,600 rooms. In 1975, we will have 16,000 rooms. And in 1980 we estimate that Hong Kong will need 21,500 rooms or more."

Japan's Exotic White Race Of Ainus Being Integrated

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI)—The blood of Japan's exotic white people, the Ainu, is flowing today into the mainstream of the Japanese race.

When Japan was opened to foreign contact in the 19th century after 250 years of seclusion, Westerners were surprised to find that a people of Mediterranean appearance were living in the northern part of the country.

Unlike the Japanese, they grew thick beards. Many had blue eyes. Their language was distinct from Japanese, although it was even adulterated with Japanese words. In contrast to the Japanese, an agricultural people who had acquired Chinese civilization, the Ainu were a race of hunters and fishermen. They had no written language and a distinct religion.

References to the Ainu began appearing in Japanese history soon after the Japanese mastered Chinese writing in the seventh century. The Ainu occupied Hokkaido, and the northern half of Japan's main island of Honshu at that time.

The better organized Japanese gradually pushed the Ainu north, and by the start of the 19th century they were largely confined to Hokkaido.

Today only about 1600 persons inhabit all-Ainu villages, wear traditional dress, and practice the traditional way of life, according to the Hokkaido government office in Tokyo. Most of them are in their 60s, and their traditions will not outlive them.

The younger Ainu are "voting with their feet" for Japanization, moving to the cities to take jobs, and intermarrying with Japanese.

Japan ended segregation of Ainu school children in 1937, and today they enter public and private schools on a non-discriminatory basis.

With Japan enjoying virtual full employment during the 1960s, people of Ainu descent now are living in all parts of the country, although Hokkaido still has the largest group. There are no residence restrictions.

The Ainu's separate existence was doomed in the 19th century when Japan, fearful of Russian penetration of Hokkaido, flooded the island with colonists.

With the Japanese converting their hunting grounds to farmland, the Ainu were impoverished. The Japanese government's efforts to resettle Ainu as farmers met with only partial success, and the

Censorship

A bill passed by the Idaho Senate on Monday, which would require that all editorials "written in Idaho published newspapers be either signed by name or initial" smacks of implied censorship.

Since the first newspaper was published in these United States, it has been the right of that publication to take a stand on the issues. And any stand taken has been the policy of that paper — not of an individual.

The bill which got through the Senate was introduced by Sen. John Peavey, a Rupert Republican. It would make one wonder if somewhere along the line he must have had some harsh things said about him in an editorial. Someone must have bristled the hair on the back of his neck. There could be no other logical reason for sponsoring such a law.

Mr. Peavey apparently does not realize that an editorial is not always the work — or the thoughts — of one individual. One individual might make the final draft but the thoughts in the various paragraphs can, and often are, the feelings and the learned thinking of several people.

If an editorial appears in a newspaper it is the policy of that paper. The paper will stand behind any statements made in the editorial in all cases.

Having initials on the end of the editorial would not alter the content at all. Neither would it change the policy of the paper to back what is said in that editorial.

Not all editorials are on controversy. Most of them are of an informative nature. Those of an informative nature are sometimes "borrowed" from other newspapers or received from wire or editorial services. It is a true rule that anyone who writes these editorials is not important. It is the subject matter that is important and it is passed on to the reader through the editorial columns.

Mr. Peavey is quoted as saying that such legislation would "upgrade the editorial reputation." Who would be the final judge as to whether an editorial is good or bad? Needless to say, if an editorial writer is no good he will not long hold that job but it will not be because of any law. It will be because he is not doing the work the newspaper owner thinks should be done.

Mr. Peavey is also quoted as saying that all Letters to the Editor must have the writer's name published. He is wrong. The Times-News withholds names on request and Mr. Peavey could have found this out if he had taken the time to ask instead of running off on a tangent.

In the case of the Times-News we can look back over our editorials for years past and we can say that not one would have been changed if initials had to be put on the bottom of them.

This signing an editorial is not the issue. The issue is that an editorial is a reflection of the newspaper. This law would destroy the real meaning of an editorial.

There is no secret who runs any of the newspapers in Idaho. There is no secret who writes editorials on any of these newspapers. A telephone call to the Editor of the Times-News as to "who writes what" has always brought an honest answer. But we must point out again that regardless of who actually writes the editorial, it does not set aside the fact that it represents the policy and the thinking of the newspaper in which it is published.

Frankly, this is not the type legislation that a State Legislature should enact.

It is nothing more than an attempt to throttle a free press at a time when a free press is a vital thing in this nation — and in this state.

We trust that the House, in considering the bill it has now received, will take a longer, more careful look than did the Senate.

Right now the editorial—the newspaper's policy—is what keeps a lot of wayward, ambitious and odd-thinking politicians in line. It should remain so.

Lloyd Walker

Lloyd Walker's entry into the race for Governor of Idaho will do one thing. It will make the primary interesting.

Mr. Walker, a Twin Falls attorney, has never been famous for saying one thing and thinking another. Rather, he says what he thinks. This has made him a lot of enemies — but it has also made him a lot of friends.

In his race for the nomination on the Democratic ticket, it remains to be seen whether his tactics have made him more friends than enemies.

His entry is not to be taken lightly. He will make a serious bid and is not in there just for the publicity. He is a match for anyone in public utterances and along the campaign trail Governor Samuelson will be in for a good deal of direct "barbs" just because Mr. Walker is around.

We welcome Mr. Walker's decision to enter the contest and we will follow his campaign with interest.

For Viet Victory

One of the nagging questions of the Vietnam war — from a strictly practical standpoint and ignoring the larger questions of morality or international political strategy — is how the greatest military power in the world could have allowed itself to be held at bay, both in the field and at the negotiating table, by one of the most militarily primitive powers.

The Vietnam conflict is now the longest this nation ever engaged in, the second costliest in terms of money and, by a narrowing margin, third costliest in terms of battle deaths.

The answer may be that we were too powerful, too dazzled by the sophistication of our weaponry and, far from being guilty of the error of engaging in a ground war in Asia, which so many generals warned against, actually made the mistake of failing to fight a ground war. Instead, we tried to win it from the air.

What we really needed in Vietnam, thinks one military analyst, Maj. Michael J. F. Parrino, USAF (Ret.), was fewer helicopters and more mules.

Rather than "search and destroy" including destroying villages "in order to save them," and then leaving an area to be retaken by the enemy, the strategy should have been to attack and occupy with traditional field armies. And in the rugged jungles and highlands of Vietnam, pack artillery would have been the only adequate form of support for a field army, he says.

The Army, of course, no longer has any mules. But it has lost more than 3,500 helicopters in Vietnam and an unreported number of crewmen.

The tactical air-mobility that has been employed in Vietnam, revolving mainly around the helicopter, "has probably been the most overrated and costly ever undertaken by any army in the history of warfare," writes Parrino.

The British guerrilla war expert, Sir Robert Thompson, whose observations have deeply impressed President Nixon, has also indicted this overreliance on the helicopter.

"It was a matter of blind faith that aggressiveness and mobility, combined with a fast reaction, constituted the initiative," he wrote in "No Exit From Vietnam," published last year. "It exaggerated the two great weaknesses in the American character — impatience and aggressiveness."

"Because helicopters are wonderful pieces of gadgetry, particularly in the hands of experienced and courageous crews, they have proved a fatal fascination for military commanders. Even when the real military situation was deteriorating, they still made it possible for American forces to go on chasing Viet Cong and North Vietnamese 'round the 'boondocks.'"

"The novelty of their tactical use scored many encouraging successes in battle, but winning battles does not necessarily mean winning wars when those battles are merely prolonging and magnifying the strategic error."

Nor is the argument now rendered academic because the President has clearly decided upon the gradual withdrawal of American combat troops. U.S. support elements, including helicopters, will remain in Vietnam for a long time to come, even after the ground war is "Vietnamized."

Were the presence of American air-mobility to encourage Vietnamese commanders to duplicate the tactics of their American counterparts, it would not only "prolong and magnify" the basic strategic error of that war but the suffering of the Vietnamese people as well.

WASHINGTON — It is hard to decide whether to be titillated or appalled by the confidential whispers of high-level camp followers of Sen. Gene McCarthy that Capitol Hill's leading poet will run for President again in 1972.

To be sure, the other Democratic candidates don't look like much fun, and President Nixon at best has always been a pedestrian campaigner with a taste for virtuous clichés and lugubrious labels. (How about that "State of the World Message"?) McCarthy, on the other hand, has always been a good show, if only because of his virtually unmatched ability to startle.

In the McCarthy camp, which is small, the lads tend to dismiss Hubert Humphrey as washed-up and Sen. Ed Muskie as too Establishment. New York's Mayor John Lindsay is said to have too many problems concerned with whether he's a Republican or a Democrat. Thus, McCarthy.

Thus McCarthy—possibly. He is, of course, not running for re-election to the Senate, but Richard Nixon had no political job from 1960 to 1968 and he did all right, if getting elected President falls in that category. But then there is McCarthy's occasional capacity for making himself look silly. To political angels with bags full of money, this knack is apt to summon second thoughts of considerable gravity.

McCarthy hasn't had many headlines lately, but he came out of hiding to lead his thoughts to Sen. Bill Fulbright's "educational" hearings on the Vietnam War. Naturally, Senator Gene inveighed against the Nixon policies, which would be okay had he refrained from offering such dubious authorities for his position as the North Vietnamese regime and the Communist National Liberation Front.

His testimony thus came out an exercise in preposterous naïveté. Without any hint of embarrassment, he testified that his opinions were based on what he was told by the Hanoi and NLF delegates when he was in Paris a month ago.

These jokers, said McCarthy, "convinced" him a political settlement of the war is possible. He said they assured him there would be no "massive executions" of South Vietnamese after a negotiated settlement, "and that there would be no takeover of South Vietnam by the North. Moreover, McCarthy testified President Nixon's Vietnamization policy wouldn't work — because the Hanoi-NLF bunch told him so.

How does one come up with a parallel to that one? It is, perhaps comparable to a pledge from President Nasser that if Israel would stop fighting he would forthwith replace all of Egypt's mosques with synagogues. Would you believe the burning of Lenin's works in Red Square, Gene?

McCarthy also put into the record his opinion that even if the South Vietnamese armed forces could be made into an effective military organization, there would still be the question of whether Vietnamization is desirable. "Asians would still be killing Asians with American arms," he said. "I suppose that's true, but in the cold view — and even in the view taken by the war protesters — a genuine civil war between the Vietnamese is preferable to a war complicated by American intervention, with resulting American casualties."

I don't know. There is little pleasure in kicking the shins of a citizen as inherently decent as Gene McCarthy. But McCarthy for President? He'd probably let himself be talked into ceding West Virginia to Nigeria for a shipment of beads and blankets. Now, if he wants to run for Poet Laureate...

"And Leave The Driving To Us"

BRUCE BLOSSAT

Objectives Are Different

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Guam doctrine and "lowered U.S. profile" notwithstanding, President Nixon really cannot be totally sure that this country can avoid limited wars like those in Korea and Vietnam. But the prospect of avoidance may be quite good.

He is telling us again, of course, that he wants "no more Vietnams." And it is hard to imagine any successor president saying he approves such involvement.

If we are truly set upon such a course, a strong enforcing element may be disillusionment.

War breeds many sorts of disillusionment. I am talking here of just one kind—the realization that it is difficult if not impossible to gain even the limited objectives a nation fixes for itself in limited war.

In Korea we had a very close call. When Chinese Red armies in late 1950 and early 1951 drove U.S.-U.N. forces out of North Korea and deep into South Korea, our highest leaders gravely weighed the possibility of getting out and leaving the South Koreans to a sad fate.

One of this century's great military commanders, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, largely saved the day. He rallied our demoralized forces and led them back northward to a tough defense line, most of it well into North Korea, which pretty much marks the armistice demarcation today.

By that effort he gained us our original objective—to repel the invaders from South Korea. Since we achieved that, and a certain amount of enemy real estate useful for defense, we had a small "victory."

Yet we gave up all though of chasing the Reds out of North Korea, as we briefly dreamed of doing before Red China's entry interrupted Gen. Douglas MacArthur's pursuit of tattered North Korean forces.

Ridgway, a shrewd judge, says we could have stormed back to the Chinese-North Korean line at the Yalu River where we once had stood. But he and all top U.S. officials opposed it.

In intense exchanges in the spring of 1951, as we smashed northward, our leaders decided the cost of such a drive was too great in terms of money, and danger of a widened war.

Some rough parallels exist between those talks and the March, 1968, conferences where we weighed our military request for 206,000 more troops for Vietnam. In both instances, heavy attention was given to the burdens the added effort would lay upon the home front in taxes, controls, and personal anguish over casualties.

Still, there was one big difference. Ridgway, persuasive as a winning commander, could point to a realistic goal. The generals who argued for more troops in 1968 could promise nothing even faintly clear. Clark Clifford, then defense secretary, decided the increase would be at once futile and a brutal burden. His negative weight was crucial.

When Lyndon Johnson reluctantly fixed the troop ceiling at 550,000 we were at the real turning point in the Vietnam war.

It meant, unmistakably, that we had given up our chief goal in that limited war—to force, mostly by our own combined strength, the defeat of the Viet Cong and the retreat of North Vietnamese regulars from South Vietnam's soil.

The objective of preventing a Red take-over has not yet been lost, though many predict such a verdict and some already proclaim it. What is clear is that, once we put a ceiling on our effort in 1963, we tossed to the South Vietnamese the big tasks in reaching that goal.

Viewed thus, Nixon's staged withdrawals of U.S. ground combat forces are a perfectly logical extension of the policy turnaround made two years ago.

In Korea, we left as a small winner after a bad scare. In Vietnam, we are disengaging on the ground without even waiting for the verdict. Ground support units may linger on a good while. But we really have made just one last big bet—air and sea support for Saigon's armies. Few noted Nixon's word Jan. 30 that it may stay the longest.

Yet, even if something is salvaged in South Vietnam, our frustrations must be lastingly deep. Limited war, for us, seems to skirt too close to failure. Who could want it again?

Clean Shirts

WASHINGTON — Everyone talks about water pollution, but no one seems to know who started it. The history of modern water pollution in the United States dates back to Feb. 28, 1931, when Mrs. Frieda Murphy leaped over her back yard fence and said to Mrs. Sophie Holbrook, "You call those shirts white?"

Mrs. Holbrook blushed and said, "They're as white as I can get them with this ordinary laundry soap."

"What you should use is this Formula Cake soap which guarantees against the dull wash-tub gray look that the family wash has always had."

Skeptical but adventurous, Mrs. Holbrook tried the Formula Cake soap, which happily did take the gray out of her husband's shirts. But what Mrs. Holbrook didn't know was that after the water was drained from the tub, it emptied into the sewer, which emptied into the Blue Sky River, killing two fish.

Three years later Mrs. Murphy leaped over the fence and said to Mrs. Holbrook, "It's none of my business, but are you still using that Formula Cake soap?"

"Yes I am."

"No wonder your husband's shirts always look dirty around the collar."

"I can never get the dirt off the collar," Mrs. Holbrook cried.

"You can if you use Klunk Soap Chips. They were designed especially for collar dirt. Here, you can have my box."

But unbeknownst to Mrs. Holbrook, the water from Klunk Soap Chips prevented any fish downstream from hatching eggs.

Four years later, Mrs. Murphy was hanging up her shirts and Mrs. Holbrook said, "How did you ever get your cuffs so white, surely not with Klunk?"

"Not ordinary Klunk," Mrs. Murphy said. "But I did with Super Fortified Klunk with the XLP additive. You see, Super Fortified Klunk attacks dirt and destroys it. Here, try it on your shirts."

Mrs. Holbrook did and discovered her husband's shirt cuffs turned pure white. What she couldn't possibly know was that it turned the river water pure white as well.

The years went by, and poor Mrs. Murphy died. Her daughter-in-law took over the house. Mrs. Holbrook noticed how the daughter-in-law used to always sing as she hung up her wash.

"Why do you sing, sing?" asked Mrs. Holbrook. "Because of this New Dynamic detergent. It literally dynamites my clothes clean. Here, try it, and then let's go to a movie, since Dynamic detergent takes the laundry out of washing."

Six months later the Blue Sky River was declared a health hazard.

"Finally, last year Mrs. Murphy's daughter-in-law called over to Mrs. Holbrook. 'Have you heard about Zap, the enzyme giant killer?'"

A few days later, as Mr. Holbrook was walking home from work, he accidentally fell into the Blue Sky River, swallowed a mouthful of water and died immediately.

At the funeral services the minister said, "You can say anything you want about Holbrook, but no one can deny he had the cleanest shirts in town."

Ugly Bruises

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In the area from elbows to wrists, I have been suffering ugly bruises every time I bump, or even touch, however slightly, any object.

A hematologist diagnosed it as senile purpura but did not give a prognosis or suggest a course of treatment. Recently I read about a vitamin complex for this. Could you comment?—Mrs. M.S.

Purpura means bleeding into or just under the skin layer. There are various types and causes. "I bruise so easily" is a rather common complaint.

Senile purpura is seen in elderly people. Walls of the small blood vessels have lost their tone and become fragile. A slight bump, even pressure, makes them bleed a little. The result: purplish discoloration.

Principal areas involved are the arms, thighs, and backs of the hands.

Do not expect too much from treatment, certainly not a sudden correction of a condition that has taken many years to develop. (Doubtless heredity has something to do with it, too.)

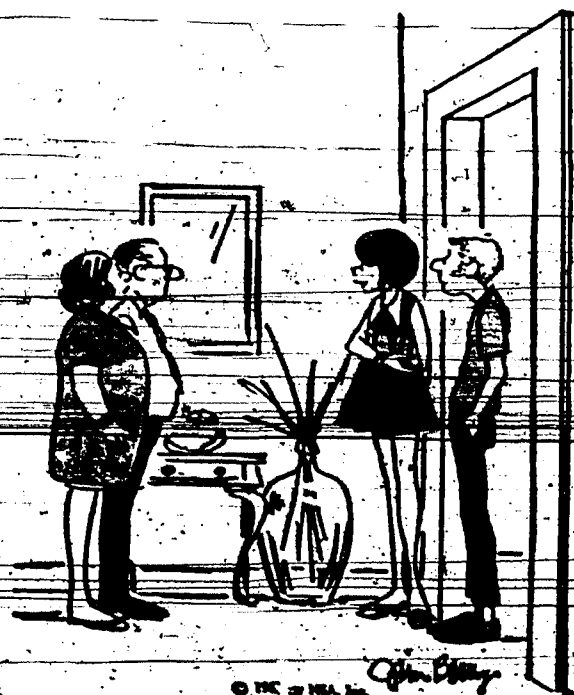

Some of us are born with rugged artery walls; some are not.) My suggestion for the most effective course is to get more protein in your diet: plus milk (or skim milk, or buttermilk, or cottage cheese) for the calcium, which is necessary; plus vitamin C (as in citrus fruits or juices, tomato juice, or ascorbic acid tablets—vitamin C being ascorbic acid). In fact, Vitamin B-complex may be of help, too, so a mixed vitamin preparation of the B-group vitamins and C would be in order.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what types of trouble to look for send for Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "You And Your Gall Bladder."

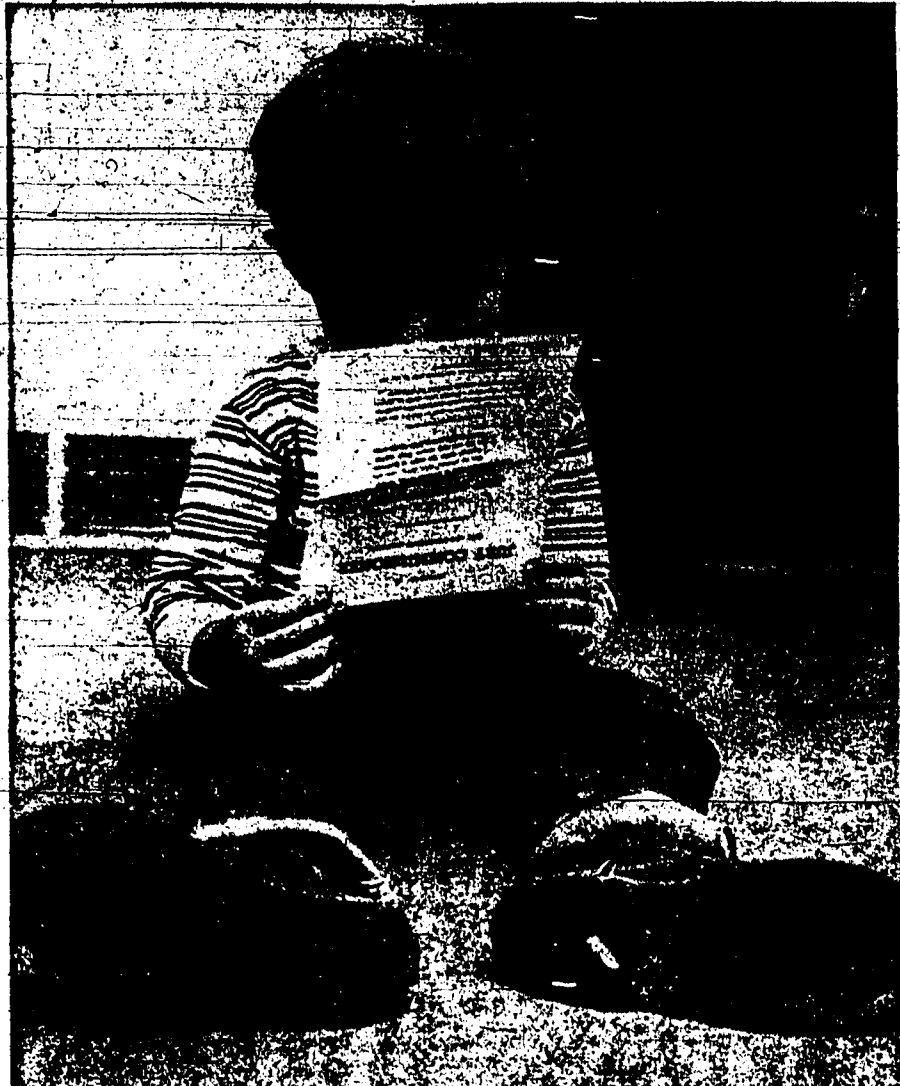

Write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper for a copy of the booklet, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

T.F. Commissioner Returns From Nevada And Speaks About Coming Rural Crisis

Morris W. Carlson, Twin Falls County commissioner and former president of the Idaho Association of County Officials, returned Monday from Las Vegas, Nev., where he attended the annual Western Regional Conference of the National Association of Counties.

Mr. Carlson said the theme of this year's conference was "The People Are Coming," and it referred to the population explosion as well as the vast migration of citizens from congested city areas to the western states.

As in recent years, he said, the county leaders discussed such problems as air and water pollution, solid wastes, possibilities of solving the financial problems for sparsely populated western counties with a high percentage of public lands within their boundaries.

Presently there is no tax revenue from these lands and school districts and county governments in such areas have a difficult time meeting financial obligations.

As examples of growth in western states, Mr. Carlson said, one of the speakers noted every 17 days a new school opens in Orange County, Calif. People are continuing to seek rural homes but are demanding urban service and convenience. Solid wastes create problems as population increases, Mr. Carlson said. Statistics quoted during the conference indicate

Missionary Talks Set At Filer

FILER — A "Missionary Encounter" is scheduled this week at the Filer Missionary Church, Fifth and Yakima, Filer, featuring several experienced people from the mission field.

The services, entitled "Giving the Language of Love," will be Wednesday through Sunday at 7:30 p.m., with two services at 10:45 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

John Woolheather, Los Angeles, will be featured speaker during the encounter. He will address the congregation and guests Wednesday. He has many years of service in several locations of the mission field.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Dick "Forester" A. missionaries from Haiti, will speak and on Thursday Mervin Trub, Brazilian missionary, will speak. The Sunday services will feature Willis Hunking, missionary from Nigeria, at the morning session, and Mr. Trub at the evening session.

The public is invited to all the missionary services.

Correction

Members of the Bickel PTA said Monday the funds used from their annual "Family Fun" night this year have been used to purchase a 3-M copying machine for the school.

A Times-News story earlier said the funds were used for a coffee machine, which members point out is incorrect. The annual program is held to purchase some needed and worthwhile item for the school.

2 Officers Appointed For Area

Two new law enforcement officers began work this week in Twin Falls, one with the Sheriff's department and the other with the city police force.

Terry Quinn, who has resided in the past eight months in the Halley-Ketchum area, has assumed the position of radio operator and desk man at the police department. Officer Quinn worked first for the City of Ketchum and for the past several months has been a Blaine County Deputy Sheriff.

Robert Vawser, Kimberly, will be the new desk man and radio operator for the sheriff's office. Jim Munn, who has been in that position for several months, will be assigned as relief man and will be working on both the desk and in a patrol car. Deputy Vawser most recently has been head custodian for Kimberly schools and has some prior police experience.

The appointments were announced by Chief of Police Frank Barnett and Sheriff Paul Corder.

Gardening Meet Set Thursday

Mrs. Lloyd Wright of the Kimberly Nurseries will speak Thursday at 7 p.m. during a Twin Falls Public Library adult services program.

She will discuss landscape gardening and new trends including the use of rocks and water, patio bark, new types of evergreens, raised planters, shade trees new to this area, roses, wet seeding for lawns and "what's in a Burn?"

Beth Dickson, in charge of adult library services, said there is no charge for the regular Thursday night programs and all interested persons are invited to attend.

The programs are held each two weeks with the other March program to feature a fly tying demonstration and talk.

Mrs. Wright will show slides to illustrate her talk and will also answer questions from those attending the program.

Permits

Six new dwellings were under construction in Twin Falls during February, City Clerk Constance Leiser indicated Tuesday.

Structural value of the homes reached a total of $41,000. There were a total of 24 new permits issued during February in Twin Falls and the total structural value reached $115,225. This compares to $105,200 for the same month a year ago. Total construction this far in 1970 is $222,125 while a year ago it reached $310,768.

Also in February were three permits totaling $25,000 for other new construction.

Hits Ghetto

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Crime in the streets hits ghetto dwellers at least 100 times harder than it afflicts middle class whites living in the suburbs, contends a nationally prominent Stanford University expert in criminal law.

During the past year, one out of 70 ghetto dwellers became the prey of a young mugger, assailant or rapist, Prof. Herbert L. Packer reports. In the population as a whole, one in 10,000 was similarly victimized.

Crandal Speaks

Ray Crandal, commander of the Twin Falls VFW post, said remarks made by him about sponsoring a move to help young men stay out of the draft were his personally and the remarks do not involve VFW policy.

He said he would try to start such a move if charges of murder are not dropped against several Vietnam servicemen.

Educator In Music To Attend Meet

The Twin Falls High School music instructor and the Idaho president of the State Music Educators Association, Del Slaughter, will be in Chicago from Wednesday through March 10, attending the national convention of the Music Educators National Conference.

State presidents will also meet during the conference. After the convention, Mr. Slaughter will return to Twin Falls, then on March 19 will go to Boise to preside over the state convention of the Idaho Music Educators Association at Boise State College.

Along with instructional sessions for the music educators, the All-Idaho High School Band, Chorus and Orchestra will rehearse for the concert to be given the last night of the convention at the BSC gymnasium.

PAINTING RECOVERED ROME (UPI)—Police Sunday recovered a Renoir painting, "Les Roses," which was reported stolen Jan. 31 from the home of Dr. Pietro Valdoni, a surgeon. They said they arrested florist Leio Smeraldi, 31, and found the painting in the trunk of his sports car.

Police Officers Close Extortion Case Involving Stake Outs And Drain Pipes

Twin Falls City Police have closed investigation on one of the most puzzling and frustrating cases they have met.

Detective Lt. Tim Qualls said today he has decided the culprit is not going to be apprehended and disclosed details of the month-old case to the Times-News.

In January police were called to a local school to investigate a minor case of vandalism—a broken window on the second floor. What appeared to be a simple case of rock vs. window turned out to be the start of a minor league extortion plot.

Lt. Qualls said the window had not actually been broken. The glass was cut, in a perfect circle, from the inside, and then a hand reached through the window and punched the glass back into the room. The rocks had since been placed on the floor, he said, to make it appear the window had simply been broken.

Several days later a letter was received by the police department—postage due. In childish handwriting on masking tape, the writer told officers "if you don't want any more windows broken at the school, put $10 in a paper sack and put it in the drain pipe." The envelope also contained a printed circular piece of material, believed to be a hex sign.

Somewhat taken aback by the audacity of the junior-grade extortionist, Lt. Qualls assigned a detective to keep his eye posted by the drain pipe. The detective had instructions, however, not to put $10 in the pipe, since the young letter writer was probably fleet of foot and might outrun the detective. The anonymous writer, however, has never appeared to look in the drain pipe.

Lt. Qualls, head of a division which prides itself on discouraging major league crime in Twin Falls, is nevertheless still a little sore that an amateur was able to get the best of him—even if the extortionist didn't get his $10.

More Courses

Group piano instructions at the YMCA in Twin Falls have proven so popular "Y" officials have scheduled two additional courses with Jay Hill as instructor.

A course will begin Thursday at 2 p.m. for six weeks. Each class continues for one and one half hours. This will be the second course offered at the Y with a third to begin April 3.

The classes are for beginning adults who wish to learn to play popular and folk songs using the chord method. Pupils use practice keyboards with one student at the piano at a time.

Nixon's Personal Diplomacy Keeps French Leader Cool After Many Demonstrations

By THOMAS CORPORA
NEW YORK (UPI)—President Nixon's personal diplomacy kept the state visit of French President Georges Pompidou from turning into a fiasco that would have set Franco-American relations back to the darkest days of Charles de Gaulle.

Pompidou had been faced with a number of demonstrations against France's Mideast policy—the sale of the 110 Mirage jet fighters to Libya and refusal to sell arms to Israel—during his tour. But the last straw came Sunday when a half a dozen youths jumped in front of Pompidou and his wife, Claude, as they were leaving their Chicago hotel and shook their fingers in the French chief of state's face shouting, "Shame, shame on you."

Pompidou and his wife were shaken and angered by the incident, and quickly made it clear, Pompidou, in a carefully calculated statement aimed at making Americans think of how they were acting as hosts, said the incident was "a blot on the face of America."

He arrived at the White Plains, N.Y., home of U.S. Chief of Protocol Emil "Bus" Mosbacher, where the Pompidous spent Sunday night, so angry he considered cutting short his visit and returning to France 48 hours earlier than scheduled—a decision that undoubtedly would have caused serious diplomatic repercussions. When Mosbacher realized how angry Pompidou was he called the White House. The result was a telephone call by Nixon to Pompidou apologizing for the incident.

Nixon added to the apology by telling the French president he personally would come to New York for the farewell banquet Monday evening.

This was an unprecedented move, since no American president had traveled during peacetime to another city to bid farewell to a foreign chief of state after formal farewell ceremonies had been rendered in Washington.

Pompidou was mollified and decided to go ahead with the remainder of his trip. However, his wife, shaken by the ferocity of the Chicago protest, canceled her Monday appointments and remained at the hotel, attending only the farewell banquet.

It appeared Nixon's diplomacy was a hit. Sources with the French president said he was no longer angry and, in effect, all was forgiven.

UPI President Protests Arrest Of Staff Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mims Thomson, president of United Press International, sent a telegram to California Gov. Ronald Reagan Monday, protesting the arrest and 20-hour detention of a UPI reporter who was attempting to cover student disturbances at Santa Barbara, Calif.

"This is to call your attention to the utter disregard shown by law enforcement authorities in Santa Barbara during the weekend to the professional and personal rights of a United Press International correspondent," Thomson said.

Charles Ott told him he was "a victim of an emergency condition."

The reporter said an official of the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department had apologized to him and said his arrest was a result of a communications breakdown among the 12 different law enforcement agencies and the National Guard.

Eclipse Big Deal In Town

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Everyone is sprucing up in Miahuatlan for the eclipse. The villagers there are brushing blue and green pastels on the facades of their stucco homes. The one public telephone has a long waiting line. City taxes are suspended. Jail dwellers now roam free.

The once sleepy town of about 14,000 perched in a tranquil mountain valley in South Mexico is in a state of week-long celebration. Miahuatlan has one paved street, one white church, four schools, five saloons, two hotels, and a big sign in the main square that proclaims:

"Miahuatlan welcomes the astronomers of the world."

An estimated 500 astronomers from many countries, plus thousands of curious, already have gathered in Miahuatlan and the nearby towns of Puerto Angel, El Camaron, and Puerto Escondido. And as many as 20,000 visitors are expected by Saturday, when the sun goes black.

"I refer specifically to the arrest of Stewart Slavin of our Los Angeles office while he was carrying out his professional duties, and to his being held incommunicado for a period of 20 hours."

"Despite the fact that he was carrying a valid press credential, Mr. Slavin was arrested, handcuffed in a painful manner, and denied permission even to make a single telephone call during the entire period he was in custody. Moreover, his notebook was seized and has not been returned as of today (Monday)."

"It is deplorable enough that law enforcement authorities thwart the coverage of their public activities by a bona fide reporter. But it is doubly disturbing when they violate his right as a citizen by denying him the opportunity to make contact with office, family or counsel," Thomson said.

Utah Recruiter To Visit T.F., Talk Of Reserve

Master Sergeant Neil Thomas, recruiter for the 945th Military Air Force Base, will be at the Twin Falls Air Force Recruiting office Monday.

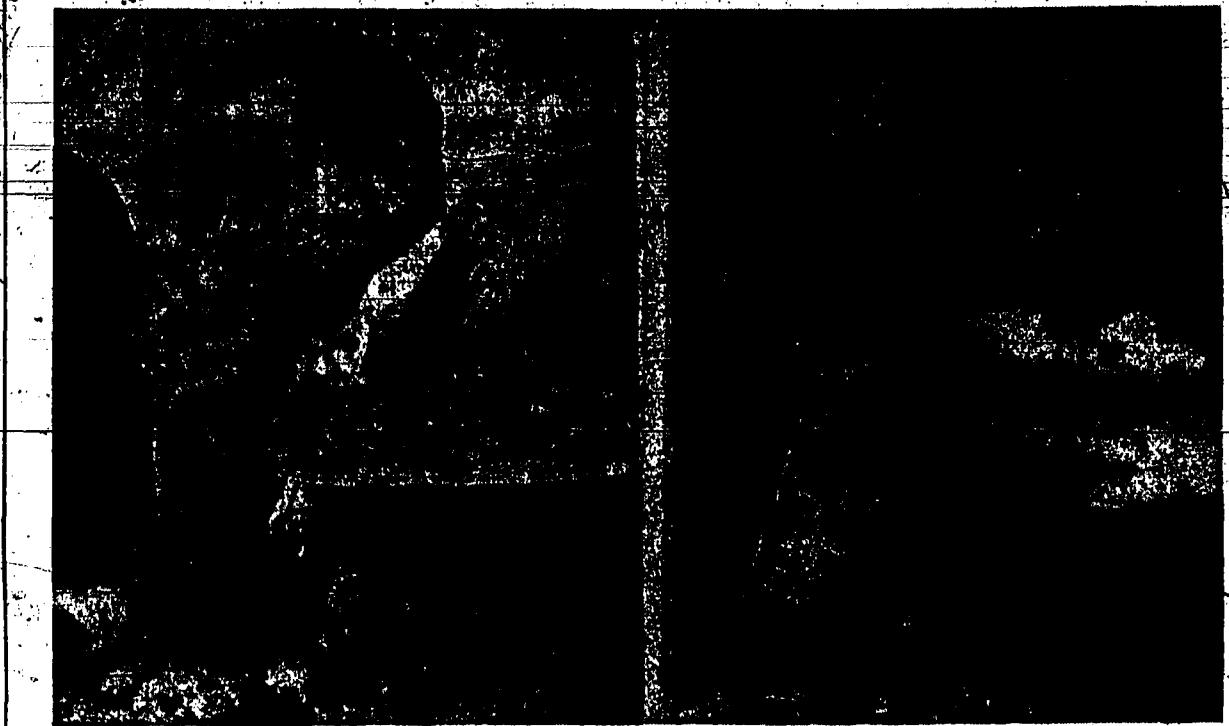

The purpose of the visit is to interview and advise interested prior service personnel on opportunities in the Air Reserve Program.

The 945th, largest Air Reserve Unit in the Intermountain area, located at Hill Air Force Base, Utah, has immediate openings for men and women with experience in any branch of the military service.

Missing

PROVO (UPI)—The hunt for a missing mail plane, object of a day-long search Monday, will continue today as mounted police, jeep, patrolmen and Civil Air Patrol searchers scour the countryside around Provo and Provo.

Some 35 searchers combed the area around Spanish Fork Canyon in jeeps and on horseback but failed to turn up any clues as to the whereabouts of a Piper Aztec plane and its pilot.

House, Senate Members Attempt To Work Out Differences On Appropriation Bills

BOISE (UPI)—A special committee consisting of leadership from the House and Senate and several others sat down today — on the 51st legislative day — in an attempt to iron out the knotty problems surrounding supplemental appropriations bills.

The deadlock in the second half of the 40th legislative session continued throughout the day Monday with the Senate and House unable to agree on a solution to the problems that have evolved from a Senate sponsored economy drive.

Senate President pro tem James Ellisworth, R-Leadore, in talking for creation of the special committee following a Monday afternoon meeting between the House and Senate leadership said, "we're still on our collision course with the House on the 25 per cent cut. . . . We want to avoid any further spinning of wheels."

Earlier in the day, the Senate remained adamant in its proposal to trim 25 per cent from the appropriations measures, whacking away at 11 of them and tacking on the downward amendments.

At the same time as the Senate was trimming, the House passed eight more appropriations bills and killed two.

Senate Minority Leader John Evans, D-Malad, said that the "quasi-conference committee is about the only way left to go."

The House, ever since the middle of last week, has refused to go along with the Senate's economy drive.

House Minority Leader Rep. Ed Williams, D-Lewiston, said, "We're going to have to see if there's some kind of common ground we can get together on instead of this bickering that we've been engaged in for the past week."

The bills that the House killed Monday afternoon would have given $13,600 to the White House Conference on Youth and $50,000 to Sun Valley area for an airport building at Hailey.

The appropriations bills that the Senate amended downward Monday included appropriations for:

The state auditor trimmed downward to $2,250 from $15,000; soil conservation to $36,727 from $48,970; School for the Deaf and Blind to $15,000 from $20,000; Bureau of Mines and Geology to $18,000 from $24,000; Lower Raft River survey to $37,500 from $50,000; state mines inspector to $7,470 from $9,960; building services to $123,511 from $134,682; and Department of Labor to $40,429 from $53,906.

Fire Detection

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Forest fire detection by means of satellites is predicted by an engineer for an automation firm.

"A worldwide forest fire detection and alarm system using satellites could save tens of millions of dollars annually," according to Lincoln H. Hudson, of Honeywell's Aerospace Division.

He said satellites can also detect underground water supplies, check flood dangers and determine amount of pollution.

Public Health Doctor Says Birth Control Pills Make Women Superb Guinea Pigs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A public health physician from Illinois testified today birth control pills had turned women into guinea pigs. But Dr. Harold Schulman, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City, said the furor over the pill was attributable to society's mores about sex.

"The pill is being taken for sex," Schulman said, contending it had provided woman "with a form of security she has never had before," eliminating many female psychosomatic complaints caused by sexual tensions and "is probably doing more to eliminate and diminish poverty and problems of the urban poor than any other political action program devised."

The conflicting viewpoints came in statements prepared for delivery to the subcommittee, conducting another round of hearings on oral contraceptives.

Dr. Max Cutler, medical director of the Beverly Hills Cancer Research Foundation, agreed it was "utterly wrong to frighten millions of women unnecessarily." But he said the potential hazards in their protracted use by young, healthy women cannot be ignored.

Cutler said the "chronic" use of oral contraceptives should be eliminated and doses should be moderated.

Vial Of Dust Is Returned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A missing vial of priceless moon dust stolen from a display at a fund-raising dinner was found in a mailbox Monday when police received an anonymous telephone call.

The tiny vial was taken Saturday night while two off duty policemen watched over $25,000 worth of diamonds on another floor of Bullock's Department Store.

After the theft, sponsors of the affair said it apparently was taken as a practical joke.

The FBI and Police Chief Edward M. Davis said their investigations would continue.

The vial, containing 2.3 grams of the dust, was one of three moon samples on display at the $100-a-plate dinner.

The sample was loaned by UCLA to the Saul Winstein and Doheny Eye Foundation for the charity affair. After police found it, it was analyzed and authenticated by Dr. George Weatherill, the UCLA geologist to whom the dust was entrusted for scientific research.

Commuters In Rio Have Rough Time

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—Much has been heard from those harried commuters who ride the New Haven and Long Island Rail Road lines out of New York City. Well they wouldn't believe Rio.

Suburbanites in Rio depend on a commuter system so bad that the only good thing riders say about it is that it costs five cents.

Every working day more than 600,000 persons squeeze aboard or ride on top of the 642 trains of the Brazilian Central Railway System (BCRS), which serves the city's 23 suburbs.

There is no cooling system, and in summer, a lot of the men just take off their shirts. Others prefer to risk their lives and ride on top of the cars, or hang out of windows to catch a breeze.

In a recent short-lived campaign to keep people off the top of the cars, rail authorities passed out long wooden sticks to police for knocking them off the cars before they left the station.

But police and rail officials soon had to admit that this practice was creating more havoc than it was saving and it was discontinued.

Another problem the Rio commuter confronts is the army of pickpockets that ride along with him coming and going, on the ancient cars, most of them 1937 vintage.

Despite the warnings signs everywhere of "watch your pocket," there are daily reports of billfold thefts.

Commuters caught one pickpocket at work aboard a train recently and beat him to death before it stopped at the next station.

Because of incidents such as these and other reasons, few women ride the commuter trains in Rio. "You would be surprised what those animals can do if you don't find a place to sit," one lady complained.

"There is absolutely nothing you can do," she said. "They only laugh at you."

Kite flying, a popular sport among Brazilians, also manages to further snafu the train service. Police say kites are forever getting caught in the electrical systems that serve the line and causing power failures.

So, of course, trains seldom run on time.

The BCRS has instituted a rail improvement program by which it hopes to increase the number of trains and make improvements on present cars. A few fans have been installed so far although there are no plans for any air conditioning. In the meantime the Rio commuter will be in for more rough riding.

Test Yourself, Find Which Political Label Fits You

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—New political labels are being fabricated with unprecedented frequency these days. Which is causing a lot of confusion among the electorate.

Many people are uncertain as to which label applies to them. They can't tell whether they are "effete snobs," or "pseudo-intellectuals" or "supercilious sophistates."

Well, things are bad enough without having an identity problem. Therefore, as a public service, I have prepared a little scorecard that may help you identify yourself.

Base Reopens

NEWBURGH, N. Y. (UPI)—Stewart Air Force Base, closed last year in a Pentagon economy move, reopened Sunday as a general aviation airport serving this Hudson Valley community 70 miles north of New York City. The Metropolitan Transportation Authority, who took over operation of the new Stewart Airport, hoped the facility would ease the load on overcrowded airports closer to New York City.

of 15 cents and a maximum of $3.40. SB154 (Agriculture)—Provides that when sheriffs or deputies act as brand inspectors they shall collect the appropriate fees and remit the same to the State Board of Inspectors. 34-2.

SB155 (Judiciary and Administration)—"Electrical Supplier Stabilization Act" to set forth rules and regulations to promote harmony among electrical suppliers within Idaho. 42-30.

SB156 (Transportation)—Creates a 4-member bipartisan committee for a special legislative interim highway roads and streets study committee and appropriate. 34-2.

Signed by Governor: HB437 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB438 (Ways and Means)—Providing for state agencies to submit annual fiscal reports to supplement provisions for annual budgeting.

HB439 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB440 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB441 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB442 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB443 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB444 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB445 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB446 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB447 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB448 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

HB449 (Ways and Means)—Provides for annual rather than biennial budgeting. 34-2.

Listed below are a number of national issues. Check where you stand on each and then look at the bottom of the column to find the label that fits.

1. Next to Garret A. Hobart, Levi P. Morton and James S. Sherman, Spiro Agnew is my all-time favorite vice president. Agree Disagree Undecided

2. Given a choice between liberty and death, I would not hesitate to choose the former. Agree Disagree Undecided

3. Never trust anyone over six months old. Agree Disagree Undecided

4. Busing children across town to achieve integration is wrong. The kids should have to walk to school the way I did. Agree Disagree Undecided

5. Best way to improve the quality of education in America is to burn down the schools. Agree Disagree Undecided

6. The best way to end the war in Vietnam would be to change the name of that country back to Indo-China. Agree Disagree Undecided

7. The best way to stop crime in the streets is to invite the criminals inside. Agree Disagree Undecided

8. The best way to stop drug abuse to public schools is to teach the students to be nice to drugs. Agree Disagree Undecided

9. The best way to solve the traffic problem is to block off all the streets. Agree Disagree Undecided

10. The best thing to do about water pollution is drink gin. Agree Disagree Undecided

Scoring: Majority agreement means you are a pseudo intellectual. Majority disagreement stamps you as a supercilious sophistate. Majority undecided brands you as an effete snob. In case of a tie, you are a member of the Great Silent Majority.

Eden Woman Picked To Attend Forum

EDEN — A 4-H leader from Eden has been awarded a scholarship from the J. C. Penney Co. to attend the Western Regional 4-H Volunteer Leaders Forum in Tucson, Ariz., Thursday through Monday.

Mrs. Bernard Schwarz, leader of the Darling Daisies 4-H Club for the past four years, will join with 4-H leaders from the 13 western states at the conference. Vern Harmer, manager of the Penney's store in Twin Falls, said the company provides scholarships to pay for 12 volunteer leaders from each of the states.

Mrs. Schwarz has been active in civic work in Eden and serves as secretary of the Jerome County 4-H Leaders Council. She has been co-superintendent of the 4-H building at the Jerome County Fair the past two years and belongs to a county extension club.

A high percentage of members from Mrs. Schwarz's club have completed their projects and received blue ribbons in the district fair the past few years. Mrs. Schwarz is active in the Lutheran Church.

DDT NOT BANNED—WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., says the Nixon administration has "created the impression that the DDT ban was already a reality" but "no single use of DDT in the United States has been stopped."

Irish Wonder At American Malaprops

By DONALD P. O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN (UPI)—"I wonder," said the man with the pint of stout, "if the Americans have a sense of humor?"

No one answered, suspecting more to come. They were right. The talker settled himself comfortably in his lounge seat.

"They tell me an American U.N. official once called a secret meeting of Jews and Arabs in an effort to settle the troubles out there," said the man with the pint.

"And do you know what he said? 'Let's all be Christians about this.'"

"Fancy that."

The story was "an oldie" to this reporter, but it touched off a stream of what loosely could be called "diplomatic foot-in-mouth."

Successive U.S. administrations have tended to shy away from the "political reward" ambassadors in Ireland, in favor of the career diplomat.

It has taken much of the fun out of Dublin's social life.

The American diplomatic import provided many a chuckle on the cocktail circuit.

One U.S. ambassador gazing excitedly through a window in his spacious residence in Dublin's scenic park, exclaimed joyfully on seeing President Eamon de Valera's famed deer: "Gee, I'm glad I brought my gun. I'm just crazy about hunting!"

Another former U.S. ambassador gleefully told an Irish-American Washington dinner he planned to say on arrival the Gaelic phrase "Fag an bealach."

Some, stripe-trousered alder had told him it was a fervent way of saying "glad to be here."

In fact, it was rather a crude way of saying "get the hell out of my way!"

On another occasion an American ambassador sat in the distinguished visitors gallery in parliament where silence is mandatory.

When a confidence vote was carried he rose to his feet, clapping and cheering. It wasn't long before his friends back home saw his friendly face again.

One remembers an American ambassador indignantly rebutting the charge he was remote from the ordinary folk—that he moved along the rarefied atmosphere of the diplomatic colony and social columnists.

"Aw heck," he exploded, "that's a damn lie! I meet the plain people of Ireland every day—last month I helped them import three American cars."

Newlyweds Are Honored At Reception

FILER—Mr. and Mrs. Wayne E. Jensen were honored at a wedding reception Jan. 30 at the First Baptist parsonage after their Jan. 13 wedding. The event was co-hosted by the parents of the bride and the bridegroom.

Mrs. Jensen is the former Cheryl Wyn Watson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roy Watson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Filer. Mr. Jensen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Jensen, Twin Falls, the elder Mr. Jensen being the deputy sheriff of Twin Falls County.

For the reception, the new Mrs. Jensen wore a beige lace dress with long bell sleeves, a large collar with lace trim and covered buttons over a brown crepe skirt belted at the waist. She wore a white and yellow orchid corsage.

Mrs. Jensen chose blue and white as her decorating colors. The table held double crystal candleholders decorated in blue with white candles, white wedding bells and tiny white doves. The table was centered with a three-tiered white wedding cake, decorated with blue flowers, white bells and gold leaves, topped with a small white Bible and two white doves before a heart-shaped background.

Guests attended the reception from 8-10 p.m. The house was decorated with blue and white wedding bells and ribbon. The women of the First Baptist Church served cake, punch and coffee.

Beverly Jensen, sister of the bridegroom, and Sandy Loder, Twin Falls, were in charge of the guest book and gifts.

Among the many friends and neighbors who attended the reception were Rev. and Mrs. Howard R. Olson of the Na-

World Day Of Prayer Set By Filer Church Women

FILER—Filer church women will join millions of people throughout the world to observe a World Day of Prayer March 6 at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Gerald Weaver, a missionary from the Congo, will be guest speaker. The 10:30 a.m. service will be preceded by a coffee hour. Mrs. Marshall Johnson is in charge of the worship service, and special music will be provided by a ladies' quartet from the Filer Mennonite Church.

The four Filer churches sponsoring this joint worship service include the United Methodist, the Mennonite, the Nazarene and the First Baptist. The World Day of Prayer will be observed in 25,000 communities with prayers to be offered in 75 languages and a thousand dialects.

The annual chain of prayer which will begin at dawn with the first voices in the tropical Tongas just west of the International Date Line, will pass through the day across oceans and continents and will end at nightfall with the last prayers in Hawaii and the Islands of Alaska.

The theme, "Take Courage," was chosen by Gudrun Biesel, Germany, a member of the International Committee. A nationwide offering will go toward helping less fortunate people.

Mrs. Earl E. Walker, Mrs. Eugene Walker, Mrs. Fae M. Wegener, Mrs. O. H. Weinrich, Mrs. Harry Whitehead, Mrs. Dora C. Wilks, Mrs. Glen Wilkison, Mr. and Mrs. Jay C. Williams, Mrs. Esther Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wright. The centerpiece was furnished by Mrs. Jay C. Williams.

Members were reminded of the potluck to be held at the March 10 meeting at 6:30 p.m. for Chapter Birthday Night honoring past matrons and past patrons.

Dear Abby

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am employed in the records department of a government agency, and I would like to use your widely syndicated column to air a gripe.

People who lie about their ages! They louse up our Social Security records, insurance and pension payments. They do the same in private business.

We've had cases where people have lied about their ages from 1 to 15 years and what a God-awful mess that leaves us in!

So be a pal, Abby, and tell the people out there, it's a sin to tell a lie.

OLGA IN RECORDS

DEAR OLGA: While I do not condone lying about anything, I can certainly understand why so many people have lied about their ages. Private companies as well as government agencies have been so unfair and unrealistic in their hiring and retiring practices that they have practically forced many otherwise scrupulously honest men and women to lie about their ages in order to survive a few years more. When big business admits that age is not as important as the ability to do the job, people may quit lying about their ages and losing up records. And I'm for that!

DEAR ABBY: There is a fellow in one of my classes who digs me. But I don't dig him. There's nothing wrong with him. He's just not my type. He asks me for dates months ahead, so he knows I can't possibly have a date for that night.

What can I tell him? If I say I'm busy on a Friday night, he asks me for Saturday. Or the next Friday. It's really ridiculous, Abby.

I hate to hurt this guy's feelings, but I just don't care to go out with him. So what should I do? I feel sorry for him.

TURNUED OFF

DEAR TURNED: The next time he asks you for a date, level with him. Tell him to ask somebody else. And if you can dig up a girl who you think might dig him, suggest he call her. It's not as unkind as it sounds. It's better than going with him and wasting his money and your time.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I wrote to you about my problem and inclosed a self-addressed envelope for your reply. You answered that letter, but I never did see your answer although it helped to save our marriage. Do you know why?

My husband got the mail before I did that day. He saw a letter addressed to me in my own hand, became curious, and opened the letter, read it and never showed it to me. He told me later that at first he was very angry with me for having written to you, but after he thought about it for a while he decided to take your advice, which was for us to see the family counseling service.

I never could figure out why, out of the clear blue sky, my husband decided we should get professional help.

I thought you'd like to know, Abby, that although our marriage is far from ideal, it is a lot better—and it's improving all the time.

So thanks, Abby, for a letter you wrote to me which I never read, but helped me all the same.

MAPLE SHADE, N.J.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing that letter from THE PEOPLE UPSTAIRS. In the future we shall be more quiet. THE COUPLE DOWNSTAIRS: SANTA BARBARA, CAL.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DRAGGING" IN CLEVELAND: Never mind your sinuses. Send your SISTER to Arizona and you'll feel better.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69, 700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamp, addressed envelope.

245 Girl Scouts, Leaders Participate In Songfest

BURLEY—Girl Scouts from Magic Valley held a Songfest recently at Burley Methodist Church.

The event marked the first songfest held in this area by the organization.

A total of 245 Girl Scouts and their leaders attended from Filer, Twin Falls, Wendell, Jerome, Heyburn and Declo. The event was hosted by Silver Sage Council, District No. 2, Neighborhoods No. 17 and 18.

Mrs. Gayle Bennett, Twin Falls, served as the songfest leader.

Each Girl Scout troop taught the other Girl Scouts camp songs, and at the end of the day each troop knew the camp songs of all the other troops.

At noon the girls enjoyed sack lunches in the dining room of the church.

Special guests during the day were Mrs. Paul Johnson, Pocatello; District No. 2 president and Kathleen Pearson, Pocatello; District No. 2 adviser. Songfests have been held the past few years in the Pocatello area.

Represented at the songfest were three Cadette groups, 12 Junior groups and nine Brownie groups.

It was announced March 3 a training meeting in Twin Falls and Jerome on March 4 and 5.

A Cookie Luncheon will be held at the Ponderosa Inn, courtesy of Burri Cookie Co. Girl Scout Week is March 8 through 15 throughout Magic Valley. March 8 has been set aside as Girl Scout Sunday which all the troop will be observing.

The annual Girl Scout cookie sale will be held from March 13 to 28 announced Girl Scout officials.

Leaders of the Girl Scouts were reminded of the Silver Sage Council meeting April 13 at Idaho Falls.

The Girls' Scouts were urged to be thinking of the Neighborhood No. 18 (Twin Falls, Jerome and Wendell) Day Camp planned for June 22 through 27 at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

Vandals Defeat Montana State Bobcats 86-72

MOSCOW (UPI)—Idaho combined a balanced scoring attack with a large edge on the boards to defeat Montana State 86-72 in Big Sky Conference action here Monday night.

The Vandals led 40-34 at the half after coming from a 16-15 margin eight minutes earlier.

Idaho survived a Montana State rush in the second half when Nick Fullerton, Terry Quinn and Bill Brickhouse capitalized on outside shooting and foul shots to bring the Bobcats from a 49-40 deficit to within one point, 57-56, with 10 minutes left.

However, eight straight points by the Vandals made the score 65-56 and put the game out of reach of the Bobcats.

Idaho, which won its third straight conference game, is now 4-9 for the season and out of the Big Sky cellar for the first time this season. That position belongs to Montana State, which finished its season with a 4-11 record.

Malcolm Taylor led five Idaho players in double figures with 22 points and 14 rebounds. Adrian Prince followed with 15 and John Nelson and Ron Cummins added 13 apiece.

Fullerton finished high for Montana State with 16 followed by Brickhouse and Quinn with 13 each.

NINE NEVER, EXCEPT MAYBE

The old jingle, "Eight ever, nine never," is reasonably correct. It applies to the problem of whether or not to finesse for a queen. If you have eight of the suit it tells you to finesse. If you have nine it tells you to play for the drop.

The odds that favor the finesse against the drop with eight are so good that you should follow the "ever" part of the rule almost all the time, but the advantage of the drop over the finesse when you hold nine is little indeed. With any extra information at your disposal you should change the "never" to "well, hardly ever."

East overtakes the king of spades with the ace and returns the suit. West takes the queen and 10 of spades and shifts to a diamond.

South has lost three tricks and can't afford to lose to the queen of trumps.

Because West has shown up with three more spades than his partner South should start the trump suit by playing dummy's king. Maybe East will hold all four. Both opponents follow, and East follows on the second heart.

At this point South should finesse! Why? Not because we all see that queen of hearts in the East hand but because at this point the odds are exactly 7-to-6 in favor of East holding that queen.

Why are the odds 7-to-6? Because East holds seven cards, any one of which may be the queen of hearts, while two of West's eight cards are known to be spades.

Scribe Doubts Estimate That Few Husbands Are Faithful

IT IS THE CONTENTION of a matrimonial counselor that only one husband in 10 remains faithful. That's too cynical an estimate. RARE IS THE WOMAN and remarkable who knows when to stop cooking cabbage. ALTHOUGH THERE are 11 alleged Jesse James caves, history records that the outlaw Jesse James never hid in a cave, never ever. FLIP WILSON is the cagiest comic on TV now, I think. YOUNG LADY, THE ODDS run approximately 140,000 to one that you will not marry your teacher. What, you say that's good news?

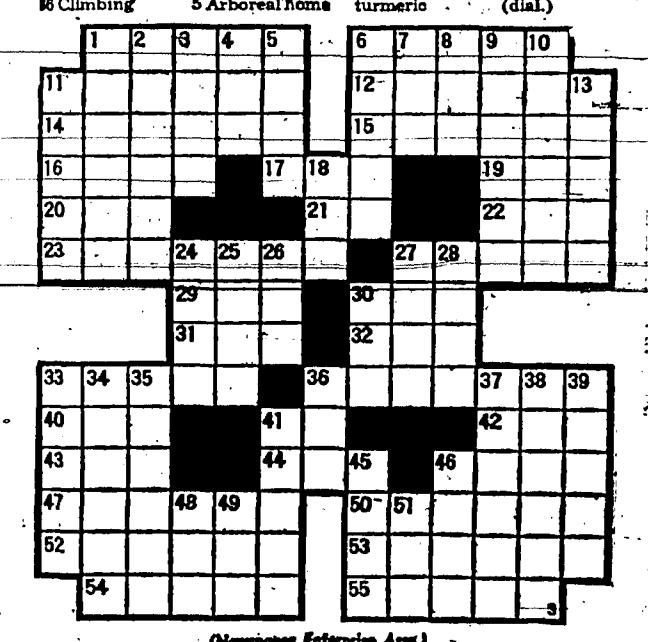

PERSONAL NOTE — So tomorrow the ladyfriend and I will jump on a jet and go west. Goodbye, New York City. No, we're not disgruntled. Not with delicatessens, not with dog sign in doorways. Nor, as the fellow said, are we altogether grumpy. But it is time to see Seattle again, and to visit San Francisco, and to pay long call on Los Angeles, where our mission will be to check out the talent and get sunburnt. Swift is the flight, but slow that languor by the surf. If you do not hear from us within a reasonable time, please send a life-guard.

OPEN QUESTION — Why do people with flat feet tend to perspire excessively? THE HAIR TINT makers will not publish the report, but their researchers have discovered that American men prefer brunettes six to one over redheads. "WHAT DID THE FIRST Greyhound bus look like?" inquires a client. That was a sev-

WINNING THE SIXTH GRADE overtime contest Thursday night was Semba's Lions. The Lions beat Hine's Hotshots 33-26. The championship game was played at Robert Stuart Junior High School and was sponsored by the Twin Falls Jaycees and the Twin Falls Recreation Department. In the front row, from left, are Dale McFarland, Paul Wilson, Roel Arambula and Gilbert Sanchez, and top row from left, George Semba, the coach, and Brian Osborn, Randy Semba, Alan Farley and Carl Brannon. The game was the final in Twin Falls knothole basketball competition.

LEADING CAUSES OF DEATH IN THE UNITED STATES

VICTORY OVER HEART DISEASE

With figures at left representing cardiovascular deaths per 100,000 population, chart indicates the extent to which medical science is achieving victory over heart and blood vessel diseases. The composite line for men and women shows a decline of 19 per cent since 1950.

PASSENGERS BOARD moving cars from a slowly moving platform in a new "Carveyor" mass transportation system. Designed to relieve traffic and pedestrian congestion in cities and airport terminals, the all-weather system could handle 22,000 persons an hour. Two cities are already interested in it, according to Goodyear, its developer.

Photo Of Starving Youngster Offers Incentive To Reduce

MARY BOWERS MacKORELL, Charlotte, North Carolina

I recently had a spiritual adventure through which I learned, of all things, the secret of losing weight. It was a matter of motivation.

I had never been seriously overweight — just, I'd been telling myself for years, pleasingly plump. Nevertheless, my doctor suggested that I take off several pounds.

So, I started. The diet plans, the dietetic foods, the calorie-counted drinks. But always there was the temptation to reinforce that kind of meal with a hunk of strawberry shortcake, and I just didn't seem to have the willpower to resist. The pounds stayed on.

Then it happened. As usual, I was eating my lunch alone in front of the TV in my dining room, watching a program about cooking. It pictured delicious dishes which it said every housewife should try.

As I finished my lunch, I suddenly picked up a pamphlet which had dropped on the sofa with the rest of the morning's mail. I had recognized it when it arrived as an appeal for money, and the thought had gone through my mind even as I laid it down that my schoolteacher salary was already stretched to take care of other causes.

But now — maybe it was the contrast with the scenes of plenty bombarding me from the TV set — the photo on the front of the leaflet seemed to leap out at me.

It was a picture of an emaciated dark-skinned boy, sitting against a wall in Haiti. His scrawny chest and limbs made him look like a tiny skeleton.

How can I sit here, the thought suddenly pierced me, unable to resist the consumption of more nourishing food than is good for my health, while this little boy and thousands like him have scarcely enough to hold their bodies and souls together?

And then God gave me an idea. It was one of those inspirations. That is, occasionally come to our minds directly from His Holy Spirit. Couldn't I take the pounds off myself and transfer them to the body of a starving child?

At last I had a spiritual motivation for reducing. Under God's guidance I formed a practical plan and carried it through.

For a period of 10 days, I ate only two meals each day, skipping lunch. Each day at the lunch hour, I sipped a sugar-free drink and looked at the picture of the starving boy, I prayed God to bless him and let my extra weight be transferred to him or someone like him. For each lunch omitted, I placed in a box one-dollar bills.

The result was exactly as I had hoped. My experiment began on August 18th, and ended August 28th. In that ten-day period, I had not only saved $10, but lost exactly five pounds.

The only question now was where to send the money. I knew I could not expect to get it to the same boy whose picture had inspired my adventure — not even through the same organization, since their work is exclusively distribution of literature.

While I was puzzling over how best to complete my plan, the mail brought the answer in the form of another appeal. This time it was on behalf of the starving millions of India.

"Buy a bowl of rice a day for a starving child," the letter begged, and added: "That bowl of rice will cost about 10 dollars a month." Needless to say, I stopped my 10-dollar bills.

They I enclosed a prayer that those bowls of rice be used by God to "transplant" the five pounds that I had lost to the emaciated body of some child.

The figures involved in my experience are small, but just imagine what could happen if every American man bewailing his lost waistline, or every housewife letting out her seams once more, could claim for himself a similar experience. The result could be health on one side, life on the other, and a bridge of caring stretching round the world.

THE SPOKANE-INLAND Empire Zoological Society owns this 6-year-old baby bull Indian elephant, but, as yet, has no zoo to display him in. Measuring him to learn his need is Ronald L. Walters, a University of Idaho architecture student, who has developed a new concept in zoo design to meet the needs of potential zoo animals.

New Zoo Design May Let You Picnic With Animals

MOSCOW — Share lunch with a giraffe? Picnicking with animals may be possible at the proposed Spokane-Inland Empire Zoological park if the designs of a University of Idaho architecture student are adopted by the Inland Empire Zoological Society.

Allowing zoo visitors into the enclosures of docile but unusual animals is only one of the concepts that Ronald L. Walters, Aberdeen, has proposed for the new zoo. The most far-reaching concept is his computer program for zoo animal selection. Walters has developed a system for classifying zoo animals according to their needs, tolerances and characteristics in such a manner that electronic data processing equipment can determine which of the more than 3,000 possible zoo animals will thrive in a particular area.

"The major advantage of such a program," according to Kit Beecher, director of the zoological society, "is that once the program is completed, it can be applied to any zoo site in the world, telling the officials which animals would survive and thrive under the conditions experienced in their region."

The computer program can analyze hundreds of facts about each animal such as water requirements, temperature tolerances, food, and even danger, and print out answers to such questions as the kind of enclosure needed, feeding and care requirements, and the animal's opportunities for survival and breeding under the conditions available in the zoo's area.

Such techniques have not been available to zoo officials in the past, requiring costly trial and error selection of animals based upon the experiences of the individual zoo director. Walters' program accomplishes in about 30 minutes of computer time what would require months of planning and research on animal and enclosure selection.

"Ron's zoo development ideas emphasize the importance of bringing the animals into a zoo situation that resembles, as nearly as possible, the actual habitat of the animals in the wild," states Beecher. "Instead of requiring the animals to accommodate to the convenience of man, an accommodation that many animals find difficult. Ron's program allows the animals to roam in a large area and mingle with other species that they would normally associate with in the wild."

"Animals that normally associate in groups or societies, like baboons and wolves, can be allowed to do so in such a program. This produces happier, healthier animals and enhances their opportunities to reproduce."

Walters explains that, "Currently only about six per cent of all zoo animals breed in captivity. I feel that, by providing natural surroundings rather than close cages, and animals that fit the climatic conditions of the Spokane area, we can virtually insure the propagation of many rare species and, at the same time, provide the zoo visitor with a chance to see the animals in their natural surroundings."

Walters has become somewhat of a world authority on zoo design — quite an accomplishment for a 23-year-old undergraduate. He recently presented an outline of his ideas to a conference of zoo directors from England, Canada, and the United States in Seattle and won recognition for his work with offers of employment from several famous zoos. He has presented his design concepts at programs at Washington State University, and University of Idaho and other gatherings of architects and zoological societies in the Northwest.

Not satisfied with his accomplishments with animals, Walters is now exploring ways of applying his technique to the problems of human environment. "If human activities can be classified in a manner similar to the way that we are categorizing animal characteristics, land utilization can be programmed to maintain the ecological balance of the land with as little human disturbance as possible."

Livestock Leader Sets Nevada Talk

JACKPOT — Bill Swan, Rogerson, president of the Livestock Producers Marketing Association, will be guest speaker at the Northeast Elko Soil Conservation District's annual meeting Wednesday in Jackpot.

This year's no-host luncheon meeting will be held at 1 p.m. in Diamond Jims.

Two awards will be presented to two cooperators, selected by the district's supervisors, for their conservation accomplishments. Representatives from the Goodyear-Tire and Rubber Co. and the First National Bank of Nevada will present these awards.

Some of the accomplishments the soil district cooperators have done this past year include 260 acres of brush control work, 2,571 acres of irrigation water management, 3,007 acres of pasture and hay land management, 260 acres of reseeded range, built one farm pond, installed

Bald Error

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Charles Ralph Rhea 19 lost all of his hair but he was back in the Navy today after a short stint with the Marines. Rhea, of Urbancrest, Ohio, arrived here Tuesday night with orders to report to the Naval training center, but he boarded a Marine Corps recruit depot bus accidentally.

"Some guy yelled 'all you recruits fall in over there,'" he said. "Well, I'm a recruit so I lined up with the rest of the men."

One of Rhea's first stops was a Marine barber shop, where he got the standard onion haircut. Later, someone noticed the word "Navy" stamped on his service jacket and he was moved to the Naval training center.

two irrigation systems and four wells.

Also during this annual meeting, reports by federal agencies that have been assisting the soil district will be given. These agencies include the Humboldt National Forest, Nevada Fish and Game and the Bureau of Land Management.
